

They're off and racing at Martha Cove Village

The stylish hats and racing finery may have been packed away for another year, but many people enjoy horse racing beyond the Spring Carnival. Martha Cove Village in Safety Beach, is hosting guest speaker and local horse trainer, Tony Noonan, at a special afternoon tea, where he will share stories about his life at the track. Tony's love of racing and his belief in the power of community has led to an innovative way for individuals and groups to bring more people into the industry at an affordable cost by joining a Social Syndicate.

The Beleura Village Social Syndicate enjoyed visiting the stables.

"Tony spoke to residents at our sister village, Beleura Village in Mornington last year" said Martha Cove Village Manager, Dyreen Quinn. "Even people who weren't interested in racing loved his presentation. He is such a warm and witty speaker. Now we are up and running at Martha Cove Village, we thought Tony was the perfect person to kick off our 2016 events."

"The enthusiasm created by Tony's Social Syndicate presentation at Beleura Village has been extraordinary. As a result, the residents have has created two syndicates, comprising in excess of 40 residents, in a three year old filly named Beleura Belle," Dyreen shares.

"The success of any stable is largely attributed to the support of our owners, who allow us to do what we do best, and that's train fast horses," said Tony. "The groups presently involved in Social Syndicates are having a lot of fun learning about racing and adding horse racing to their list of life's great experiences."

Guests at Afternoon Tea at Martha Cove Village will enjoy a catered event and will be able to tour the Clubhouse, displays and village grounds after the presentation. Afternoon Tea will be served in the gorgeous new Clubhouse, where residents enjoy all the lifestyle benefits of village living, including swimming, fitness classes, having a drink at the bar or enjoying a latte at coffee club. The village, which comprises 138 homes, is nearing completion in early 2016.

Retirement Communities Australia is delighted to invite you to enjoy a special afternoon with our guest speaker:
